Moss — nonvascular, succulent green plants with no roots grows in clumps and sheets. Water absorbs directly through its leaves and stores in its cellular tissue. We evaluate Quality by the length of the strands, how fluffy are the strands and clean of debris; the higher the quality the greater the water holding capacity. Florists and Nurseries have discovered ways to put these properties to good use to keep potted plants moist and cool.

A natural for houseplant soil conditioning, lining hanging baskets, filling wire forms for topiaries, decorative soil and foam covering, mulching, soil-free growing, transplanting – and more.
